

A STATEMENT ON 'OIL FOR FOOD PROGRAM' BEFORE THE HOUSE SUBCOMMITTEE ON NATIONAL SECURITY, EMRGING THREATS AND INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS (APRIL 21, 2004)

By

Nimrod Raphaeli
Senior Analyst
Middle East Media Research Institute (MEMRI)
Washington, D.C.

Mr. Chairman

On January 25, 2004 the Iraqi daily Al-Mada published a list of 270 individuals and entities who were beneficiaries of Saddam Hussein's oil vouchers. The Middle East Media Research Institute or MEMRI, translated the list from the Arabic and made it available to the non-Arabic readers on January 29.

Mr. Chairman

In my presentation I will address five questions that we have frequently been asked:

First: what are these oil vouchers and how were they used?

Second, who were the beneficiaries?

Third, is the list authentic?

Fourth, what other means did Saddam Hussein use to subvert the Oil for Food Program?

Fifth, could the administrators of the Oil for Food Program have been unaware of the regime's subversion of the Program?

I shall now answer the questions briefly and in that order.

First: The Nature and Use of the Oil Vouchers

In May, 2002, or two years before the oil vouchers achieved their present notoriety, MEMRI issued a special dispatch entitled "Iraq Buys and Smuggles its Way out of UN Sanctions." That dispatch catalogued techniques that were being used to subvert the Oil for Food Program, including the use of vouchers to buy friends.

In brief, Saddam Hussein granted oil vouchers to various beneficiaries -- individuals as well as public and governmental entities -- who could then sell them to oil dealers or agents operating from the Rashid Hotel in Baghdad. The agents would then sell the vouchers to oil companies which, in turn, would submit them to the State Oil Marketing Company or SOMO, to collect the oil. Both the beneficiary and the agent collected quick and handsome profits. A one million barrel voucher surrendered against $0.25 per barrel earns $250,000.

- The beneficiaries were from 52 countries and included 19 political parties, and numerous politicians and journalists. Russia led the way among countries, with 46 recipients for a total of about 2.5 billion barrels. Significant individual recipients include the president of Indonesia, the prime minister of Libya, the former Egyptian President Gamal Abdul Nasser, the President of Lebanon Emile Lahoud, and the permanent Syrian minister of defense Mustapha Tlass.
- Finally, the beneficiaries included the sons of the former Egyptian President Gamal Abdul Nasser, the President of Lebanon Emile Lahoud, and the permanent Syrian minister of defense Mustapha Tlass.
- There is a propensity among totalitarian regimes to keep accurate records of their misdeeds. The first half of the last century provides several examples. Saddam's regime provides another.
- What gives credence to the authenticity of the list is the statements by many of those implicated that they had received the vouchers for goods which they provided under the oil for food program. These statements are, at best, disingenuous. Under the Program, contracts had to be approved by the U.N., and upon the delivery of goods, the U.N. would remburse the suppliers from the escrow account held at the French bank BNP-Paribas.
- No official contracts were financed by oil vouchers. Hence, if vouchers were granted they were given either as bribes or as payment for illicit goods, which could not be purchased under the Program itself.
- Despite the sanctions, the regime of Saddam Hussein perfected a number of methods to sell oil for personal gains.
- a. By Saddam Hussein's son, Uday, own admission, Iraq exported to Syria approximately 200,000-250,000 b/d through the Kirkuk Basra pipeline. Syria never denied it.
- b. Trucks carried diesel oil from Kirkuk to southern Turkey. The Kurds who controlled northern Iraq were happy to collect transit fees
- c. Small Iraqi ships carried crude oil across the Persian Gulf mainly to Qatar for transshipment elsewhere. Many were intercepted and quite a few sank causing environmental damage.
- d. Grains and other food supplies imported under the program were re-exported

Second: The Beneficiaries

The beneficiaries were from 52 countries and included 19 political parties, and numerous politicians and journalists. Russia led the way among countries, with 46 recipients for a total of about 2.5 billion barrels. Significant individual recipients include the president of Indonesia, the prime minister of Libya, the former Egyptian President Gamal Abdul Nasser, the President of Lebanon Emile Lahoud, and the permanent Syrian minister of defense Mustapha Tlass.

Finally, the beneficiaries included the sons of the former Egyptian President Gamal Abdul Nasser, the President of Lebanon Emile Lahoud, and the permanent Syrian minister of defense Mustapha Tlass.

There is a propensity among totalitarian regimes to keep accurate records of their misdeeds. The first half of the last century provides several examples. Saddam's regime provides another.

What gives credence to the authenticity of the list is the statements by many of those implicated that they had received the vouchers for goods which they provided under the oil for food program. These statements are, at best, disingenuous. Under the Program, contracts had to be approved by the U.N., and upon the delivery of goods, the U.N. would remburse the suppliers from the escrow account held at the French bank BNP-Paribas.

No official contracts were financed by oil vouchers. Hence, if vouchers were granted they were given either as bribes or as payment for illicit goods, which could not be purchased under the Program itself.

Despite the sanctions, the regime of Saddam Hussein perfected a number of methods to sell oil for personal gains.

a. By Saddam Hussein's son, Uday, own admission, Iraq exported to Syria approximately 200,000-250,000 b/d through the Kirkuk Basra pipeline. Syria never denied it.

b. Trucks carried diesel oil from Kirkuk to southern Turkey. The Kurds who controlled northern Iraq were happy to collect transit fees

c. Small Iraqi ships carried crude oil across the Persian Gulf mainly to Qatar for transshipment elsewhere. Many were intercepted and quite a few sank causing environmental damage.

d. Grains and other food supplies imported under the program were re-exported

Third: The Authenticity of the List

The beneficiaries included the sons of the former Egyptian President Gamal Abdul Nasser, the President of Lebanon Emile Lahoud, and the permanent Syrian minister of defense Mustapha Tlass.

Finally, the beneficiaries included the sons of the former Egyptian President Gamal Abdul Nasser, the President of Lebanon Emile Lahoud, and the permanent Syrian minister of defense Mustapha Tlass.

There is a propensity among totalitarian regimes to keep accurate records of their misdeeds. The first half of the last century provides several examples. Saddam's regime provides another.

What gives credence to the authenticity of the list is the statements by many of those implicated that they had received the vouchers for goods which they provided under the oil for food program. These statements are, at best, disingenuous. Under the Program, contracts had to be approved by the U.N., and upon the delivery of goods, the U.N. would remburse the suppliers from the escrow account held at the French bank BNP-Paribas.

No official contracts were financed by oil vouchers. Hence, if vouchers were granted they were given either as bribes or as payment for illicit goods, which could not be purchased under the Program itself.

Despite the sanctions, the regime of Saddam Hussein perfected a number of methods to sell oil for personal gains.

a. By Saddam Hussein's son, Uday, own admission, Iraq exported to Syria approximately 200,000-250,000 b/d through the Kirkuk Basra pipeline. Syria never denied it.

b. Trucks carried diesel oil from Kirkuk to southern Turkey. The Kurds who controlled northern Iraq were happy to collect transit fees

c. Small Iraqi ships carried crude oil across the Persian Gulf mainly to Qatar for transshipment elsewhere. Many were intercepted and quite a few sank causing environmental damage.

d. Grains and other food supplies imported under the program were re-exported

Fourth: The Subversion of the Program by the Saddam Regime

Under the Program itself.

No official contracts were financed by oil vouchers. Hence, if vouchers were granted they were given either as bribes or as payment for illicit goods, which could not be purchased under the Program itself.

Despite the sanctions, the regime of Saddam Hussein perfected a number of methods to sell oil for personal gains.

a. By Saddam Hussein's son, Uday, own admission, Iraq exported to Syria approximately 200,000-250,000 b/d through the Kirkuk Basra pipeline. Syria never denied it.

b. Trucks carried diesel oil from Kirkuk to southern Turkey. The Kurds who controlled northern Iraq were happy to collect transit fees

c. Small Iraqi ships carried crude oil across the Persian Gulf mainly to Qatar for transshipment elsewhere. Many were intercepted and quite a few sank causing environmental damage.

d. Grains and other food supplies imported under the program were re-exported

Thank you Mr. Chairman

- records.
- It is odd, indeed, that all these audits, paid for from $1 billion collected by the UN to administer the program could not find one of the several infringements of the program that had been noted two years earlier by MFMRI – which has no access to official records.
- Mr. Tharoor says, „100 different audits“] between 1998 and 2003 and, as the secretary general has said, this produced no evidence of any wrongdoing by the U.N. Official, Council and was subject to nearly 100 different audits, external and internal, [I repeat, „The program itself was managed strictly within the mandate given to it by the Security Council and was subject to nearly 100 different audits,“] says Mr. Tharoor.
- „The program itself was managed strictly within the mandate given to it by the Security Council and was subject to nearly 100 different audits,“] says Mr. Tharoor.
- „Now comes the shocker:“ Mr. Tharoor says, „The oil buyer had to pay the government and the buyers and sellers.“ Now comes the shocker:“ Mr. Tharoor says,
- and the U.N. had to verify that the goods purchased by Iraq were indeed those allowed under the program.“ Mr. Tharoor then introduces the caveat: „But the U.N. had no way of knowing what other transactions might be going on directly between the Iraqi and the UN,“ he says.
- Price approved by the Security Council Sanctions Committee into a U.N. escrow account, Second, it offers an elaborate explanation of procedure. „The oil buyer had to pay the price approved by the Security Council Sanctions Committee into a U.N. escrow account,“ says Mr. Shashi Tharoor, United Nations Under-Secretary-General for Communications and Public Information, who wrote a letter to the editor of the Wall Street Journal protesting ignorance of wrong doing. That letter makes two curious assertions. First, it protests, „No one at the United Nations has yet seen the original list.“ Note, please, that Al-Mada had published the list one month earlier.
- Fifth: The knowledge, if not the complicity, of the UN Managers of the Program
- e. Invictus were infiltrated—a practice commonly referred to as pricing transfer for the benefit of the regime
- f. Legal shipments of oil were topped up by varying quantities with the excess sold

Attachment III: Curriculum Vitae of Nimrod Raphaei

Attachment II: The Saddam Oil Vouchers Affairs, MEMRI's Inquiry and Analysis Series No. 164 of February 20, 2004.

Attachment I: "Iraq Buys and Smuggles its Way out of UN Sanctions," MRRI's Special Dispatch No. 382 of May 22, 2002.

This report is based on the "Oil for Food Program" during the last two years of the Saddam's regime.

MEMRI's office in Baghdad forwarded the list of oil vouchers to the office in Washington, where it was translated and from which it was disseminated. As the only non-governmental research institute with an office in Baghdad, MRRI was able to be the only source to publish the whole list as soon as it was published in Baghdad.

The material presented in this paper will demonstrate that the Iraqi regime's violations of the "Oil for Food Program" were well documented and should have been evident to all and, in particular, to those who were responsible for administering the program [Annex I]. The public criticism by the Iraqi daily Al-Mada on January 25, 2004 of the list of individuals and entities that received oil vouchers from the regime [Annex II] has only colored an already well-outlined picture.

Despite the strict control over the press in Iraq during the Saddam regime, Saddam Hussein allowed himself to occasionally cross the red lines with impunity. Two examples illustrate this point. One was the publication in Babii of the exact amount of oil shipped to Syria daily, and another was publicizing the resumption of oil shipment to Turkey by truck, both transactions in violation of the sanctions regime.

Nimrod Raphaei
Senior Analyst
Middle East Media Research Institute (MEMRI)
Washington, D.C.

By

BACKGROUND MATERIAL RELATING TO HEARINGS ON OIL FOR FOOD PROGRAM TO BE HELD ON APRIL 21, 2004 BY THE HOUSE SUBCOMMITTEE ON NATIONAL SECURITY, EMERGING THREATS AND INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

When the list of the 270 recipients of oil vouchers was published many of those who were on the list argued that the vouchers were given to them in compensation for goods and services delivered to Iraq under the "Oil for Food Program." Such protests are dismissive: suppliers of buyer would be responsible for the shipping. The through one of Iraq's oil terminals or through the Iraqi-Syrian oil pipeline [see below]. The to SOMO (State Oil Marketing Organization) of Iraq, which, in turn, would supply the oil either holder and the local agent to earn a quick commission. The buyer of the voucher would submit it to Rasheed Hotel in Baghdad, to sell the voucher to a foreign company, allowing both the voucher recipient of the voucher would then use the services of various local agents, operating at the vouchers allowing them to receive a certain amount of oil, either free or at discounted prices. The and journalists, was for the government to grant certain among some of them coupons or As was reported in May 2002, one way to secure the support of politicians, intellectuals, artists subsequently translated and issued with commentaries by MEMRI.<sup>2</sup> Saddam's Oil Vouchers made public by the Iraqi Al-Mada newspaper on January 25, 2004 and highlights some of the violations by Iraq, including what would become known two years later as Dispatch" in 2002 by MEMRI entitled "Iraq Buys and Smuggles its Way out of UN Sanctions," writers, artists, singers, and journalists across the Arab world and elsewhere. A "Special There is ample evidence that Iraq used the "Oil for Food Program" to acquire support among

Special Deals for Friends of the Iraqi Regime

This paper highlights some of these methods. It is by no means complete or comprehensive. As noted in the introduction, all the pieces in this paper are taken from earlier publications by MEMRI. As more Iraqi secret documents are made public, a clearer and more detailed picture will no doubt emerge. It suffices to note, however, that while the "Oil for Food Program" was ongoing, there was considerable detail available indicating subversion of the Program by Iraqi authorities—a problem which should have been addressed and remedied by the U.N. but was not. The investigation of the Program that has been promised by the Secretary General of the United Nations may shed further light on what occurred.

Based on information pieced together from Arab (including Iraqi) press, MEMRI presented to its readers, at various times, comments and analysis concerning the methods used by the Iraqi regime, aided by, and in connivance, with traders and partners-in-corruption, to subvert the UN sanctions, in general, and the "Oil for Food Program," in particular.

I. The Subversion of the Oil for Food Program by the Iraqi Regime

To attack the surcharges and ensure that prices were market related, the United States proposed that Iraqi oil should be priced every 15 days – and the United Kingdom proposed every 10 days. The introduction of the ex post pricing system was intended to eliminate the illegal reimbursements by buyers to the Iraqi pricing system. In fact, there was no market price of oil which would have been feasible if oil was priced at the point of departure. Iraq argued that it was losing traders who could not earn profit because of the ex post pricing mechanism, but these arguments were never considered too serious.<sup>7</sup> In fact, there was no evidence that the ex post pricing of oil had impacted the volume of oil exports.

A major volume of illicit income was derived from the special surcharge of $0.25-$0.40 levied by SOMO (the State Oil Marketing Organization) on each barrel of oil sold by Iraq. While this surcharge was illegal under the UN sanctions regime, most traders were prepared to pay it to maintain good relations with SOMO because oil from Southern Iraq, light crude with very low sulfur content, is highly desired by California refineries.

Surcharge on Oil

One problem is that many of the ships used for oil smuggling were not seaworthy and caused serious environmental damage to the Gulf.<sup>8</sup> According to the International Maritime Bureau, smugglers sailed their ships at night through the Shatt Al-Arab waterway between Iraq and Iran. When intercepted, often by U.S. navy ships, they claimed to be heading for Iranian ports. At some point, they turned north and picked up the oil at Iraqi terminals. They sailed back through Iranian waters, sometimes paying a transit fee on the way. Another source claims that the smugglers paid Iran $50 per metric ton as a tariff for using Iran's territorial waters.<sup>9</sup>

Given that the U.S. Navy was also active in the Gulf, it most likely has a list of oil-carrying vessels which it intercepts. Oil tankers of various sizes carrying oil and goods from Iraq in violations of the sanctions,<sup>4</sup> and sold into the international markets. In one year, Kuwait seized more than 20 vessels and participated in those from Qatar, entered into contracts through these agents to buy smuggled Iraqi oil at a discounted price. Once the oil reached Qatar, it was issued a new "certificate of origin" particularly those from Iraq, operated through Iraqi representatives with political clout. Some traders, government of Iraq, operated through Iraqi representatives with business directly with the companies, which for one reason or another were not allowed to do business directly with the personalities, who turned these companies into "a large political bazaar."<sup>10</sup> Foreign trading personalities of the ruling Ba'th Party or their children, trade unions, political activists, and media members of the government to subtvert the sanctions regime. Most of the trading companies in Iraq were owned by members of the ruling Ba'th Party or their children, trade unions, political activists, and media personalities, who turned these companies into "a large political bazaar."<sup>11</sup> Foreign trading personalities, who turned these companies into "a large political bazaar."<sup>12</sup>

There were other ways, sometimes quite efficient and definitely rewarding, for the Iraqi government to subvert the sanctions regime.

The Qatari Channel

Goods and services under contracts approved by the U.N. were reimbursed by the U.N. against the escrow account in which oil revenues were deposited. While oil vouchers may, indeed, have been provided by the regime to suppliers of goods and services, such payment will have been for goods and services provided outside the framework of the "Oil for Food Program" and may have covered any range of weapons, weapon equipment or other illicit or luxury goods that, by definition, would not have qualified for financing under the Program.

A common method of subverting the sanctions regime was to import commodities under the "Oil for Food Program" in excess of national demand. Cereals, mainly wheat and barley, were imported and sold to local merchants who, then, exported them as a domestic commodity. In the process, someone collected a commission on the imports, took a profit on the re-export, and, in the process, paid the cost of the reshipment. There were instances, however, when what was re-exported was not necessarily a surplus commodity but a vital food commodity, such as milk powder meant for Iraqi children. When the Kuwaiti authorities seized a shipment of milk powder from Iraq, the Iraqis were quick to announce that the powder was not of high enough quality for local consumption.

Re-Exporting of Goods and Commodities Imported under the Program

Under the "Oil for Food Program", oil revenues were deposited in an escrow account at BNP. Part of which was administered by the United Nations ostensibly to prevent Iraq from using these revenues to buy weapons, weapon-related equipment, or a whole range of goods and materials that were thought likely to strengthen the Iraqi military capability. One should add in parentheses that the establishment of the escrow account at a French bank was done at Saddam's insistence that oil exports should be transacted in euro as a "punishment to the United States." The special account reimbursed the exporters and suppliers for goods exported to Iraq after advance approval by the U.N. However, it was the Iraqi government which negotiated the details with the exporters or suppliers. At that stage, the two sides (the government and the exporters) conived to add a big margin, a minimum of 10%, to the negotiated price. This additional margin of illicit profit [known in business as pricing transfer] was then paid, often in cash, to the Iraqi treasury or to an individual beneficiary, most likely Saddam Hussein himself or a member of his immediate family, designated by the Iraqi government.

Pricing Transfer

Although U.N. officials were responsible for monitoring the export of Iraqi oil under the "Oil for Food Program", and for keeping records of such exports, it was commonly known that, in connivance with some oil tankers owners, Iraq would add an additional amount of oil to legitimate oil shipments for its own account. There were many instances of "topping up" but there is no record of the amount of frequency. In one instance, the Iraqi government arrested five officials of SOMO for engaging in topping up for their own benefit, or so the Iraqi government said.

"Topping Up" of Oil Shipments

It is ironic, however, that while the U.S. was trying to eliminate the surcharge on Iraqi oil exports, it had become the largest consumer of Iraqi oil which represented about 9% of its oil imports. Valero Energy and Chevron/Texaco were the two largest American oil companies which bought Iraqi oil. American companies bought 790,000 b/d of Iraqi oil in 2001, or about half of the Iraqi oil for sale under the "Oil for Food Program." Between July and December of 2001, 70% of Iraqi oil was refined in American refineries. While the U.S. could purchase oil directly from Iraq under the Program, Iraq preferred to sell its oil to the U.S. through intermediaries and petroleum brokers, principally Russian.

When asked about the smuggling of Iraqi oil to Syria, Iraq's minister of Oil, Amer Rashed, answered that Iraq sought to strengthen its relations with all its neighbors, and that the development of economic relations between Iraq and its neighbors was a right exercised by Iraq as an independent and sovereign country, "regardless of American hegemony." At no time had Iraq denied the illicit sale of oil to Syria.

In addition to France, Russia and China, on the Sanctuaries Committee of the Security Council<sup>10</sup>, in excess of $500 million annually. For Iraq, that was a small price to pay to earn another friend, it was receiving was "a gift" from Iraq for consumption by the Syrian people. It was a gift worth sanctuaries regime. As a member of the Security Council Syria would often argue that the Iraqi oil and, hence, a member of the Sanctuaries Committee on Iraq, Syria insisted it would not violate the capacity of the pipeline. After becoming a member of the Security Council on January 1, 2002 Syria has always argued that the oil arriving at its port of Banias was meant to test the technical

February 2003 had reached a record of 253,000 b/d. have revealed to the London-based Al-Hayat newspaper that the Iraqi oil exports to Syria in filled by the Iraqi imports through the Iraqi-Syrian pipeline.<sup>9</sup> International petroleum sources thereby exceeding the local surplus by 222,000 b/d. That volume, according to Babil, was being deducted from the local surplus of 215,000 b/d. However, Syria was exporting 437,000 b/d, consumption. This left a surplus of 510,000 b/d and using 295,000 b/d for local deductive process. Syria was producing 222,000 b/d. This figure was arrived at through a green light," Iraq was exporting to Syria, 222,000 b/d. This figure was arrived at through a quoting Energy Intelligence Journal, the Iraqi newspaper Babil said that in 2001, "without a UN

The Volume of Iraqi Oil Export to Syria

by death. because much of these revenues may have been deposited into the private accounts of Saddam Hussein and his family in multiple banks. In such illicit transactions there are many hidden beneficiaries, including, probably, some on the Syrian side, but it is unlikely that their identity will become known any time soon. Iraq itself had strict rules governing the dissemination of economic data, including figures from the annual budget, and revealing such data was punishable by death. The first place, because the transactions were illegal under the UN sanctions regime and, also, payment mechanisms. The data on the revenues derived from the sale of the oil are not known, in side was forthcoming about the volume or pricing of the Iraqi oil shipped to Syria or about the importance, shipping Iraqi oil through the Kirkuk-Banias pipeline at discounted prices. Neither between Mosul, in the North of Iraq and Aleppo (after an interruption of 20 years) and, most instructed to travel abroad via Damascus instead of Amman), renewing the rail connection Syria Port of Latakia on the Mediterranean, opening of the borders (Iraqi officials were agreement with Syria, it meant shifting transit trade from the Port of Aqaba in Jordan to the products into Iraq since Iraq had little to sell to the other side. In the case of the bi-lateral trade agreements, in essence, these agreements represented a one-way flow of goods and illicit oil revenues, Iraq was able to offer trade incentives through negotiating bi-lateral free gailling the support of the Arab countries. With rapidly expanding imports, thanks both to licit and illicit oil revenues, Iraq sought to offer trade incentives through negotiations bi-lateral free Food Program" in the second half of the 1990s, a trade and diplomatic offensive aimed at As part of an effort to break its isolation, Iraq initiated, shortly after the launching of the "Oil for

Despite a record of program subversion, Raq loudly demanded reforms of the system. Raq asked the United Nations to instruct the Sanctions Committee to stop its financial violations and the

Raq Calls on Sanctions Committee to Stop Financial Violations

At the conclusion of the negotiation, the Iraqi government announced that, under the new agreement, Iraq would provide Jordan 5.5 million tons of oil in 2002, or 10 percent more than in the previous year at an estimated cost of $650 million; Jordan would pay 50 percent of the cost through exports (barter arrangement) and would receive the remaining 50 percent as "a gift" from Saddam Hussein.<sup>13</sup>

In late 2001, Jordan and Iraq negotiated a new agreement on the supply of Iraqi oil to Jordan. Jordan's demands were twofold: first, that the price of oil set at $21.50/b, established in the 2000 agreement be reduced to reflect new market prices; and second, that half the oil supplied by Iraq continue to be supplied free as a gift from the Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Jordanian royal institution but never of Iraq. Another way of supporting Jordanian newspapers was through commercial contracts. In one instance, Raq contracted with a Jordanian newspaper to publish Iraqi schoolbooks. In another instance, a Jordanian newspaper was contracted to print all official stationery for Iraqi ministers. The Jordanian government was a shareholder in some of these public enterprises and ultimately benefited from these transactions.

It was also reported at the time that the road between Amman and Baghdad was crowded with cargo shipments and oil tankers. Big transactions, generating big profits, were common. The Iraqi leadership was famous for its "generosity" toward those who supported its causes, and its financing of Jordanian newspapers was well-known. Journalists who received their salaries from the Iraqi embassy in Amman could be critical of the Jordanian government and even of the Jordanian royal institution but never of Iraq. Another way of supporting Jordanian newspapers was through commercial contracts. In one instance, Raq contracted with a Jordanian newspaper to publish Iraqi schoolbooks. In another instance, a Jordanian newspaper was contracted to print all official stationery for Iraqi ministers. The Jordanian government was a shareholder in some of these public enterprises and ultimately benefited from these transactions.

Raq also trucked to Jordan. However, the sale of oil to Jordan was exempted from the sanctions regime by the United Nations. And, in any event, Jordan received half the oil free as "a gift from President Saddam Hussein" and paid a discounted price for the other half.

The Jordanian Channel

The Turkish daily Milliyet reported that, on February 5, 2002, the office of the Turkish chief of staff sent a secret report to Turkey's prime minister requesting an end to the smuggling of diesel and crude oil from Iraq to Turkey. According to the report, 120,000 tons of crude oil were smuggled into Turkey in 2001, and the PKK members and their terrorist organizations refined it. The report estimated that this operation netted the PKK 330 billion Turkish liras (approx. $15 million) a year and allowed it to generate more money from investment.<sup>12</sup>

Raq announced that effective January 7, 2002, Turkish tankers, after a brief hiatus, would be able to cross the Iraqi border again to carry Iraqi diesel oil to Turkey. The newspaper Babti, published by Saddam Hussein's son Uday, commented, rather cynically, that "while the trade in diesel is a technical violation of the embargo imposed by the United Nations, the Western countries will turn a blind eye to this lucrative trade which is essential for Turkey whose economy is in serious crisis."<sup>11</sup>

Trucking Oil to Turkey

In a news analysis in the Egyptian daily Al-Ahram, analyst Adel Ibrahim wrote that while an oil embargo resulting inevitably in spikes in oil prices could harm the U.S. economy — such an embargo would lead to economic harm to the oil producing countries themselves — such an embargo would not be feasible with the present international economic conditions. He asked whether the Arab countries could repeat the "surprise" or the "shock" of 1973 when the oil embargo was introduced to coincide with the October war of that year. His answer was that repeating that exercise would not be feasible, with rising competition from Russia, Norway, Angola, Mexico and the countries on the Caspian Sea Basin, OPEC had lost its considerable leverage.

The call by Saddam Hussein for an oil embargo against the United States and its allies received no support from oil producing countries, either Arab or Muslim, if one excludes Lip service as meaningful support.

Is the Oil Embargo Feasible?

[the] Zionist entity from the other exported half...<sup>16</sup>

Minister Amer Muhammad Rashid, could only beg other oil producing countries, "at a minimum do not increase your oil production."<sup>17</sup> Feeling isolated on the subject, Saddam Hussein addressed another speech on April 22 to "Arab brothers, kings, presidents, emirs and officials" imploring them to reduce oil production by 50% "and directly deprive the U.S. and [the] Zionist entity from the other exported half..."<sup>16</sup>

Localized; no other oil exporter followed Iraq's lead. Faced with this reality, the Iraqi Oil Minister, Amer Muhammad Rashid, could only beg other oil producing countries, "at a minimum do not increase your oil production,"<sup>18</sup> feeling isolated on the subject, Saddam Hussein do not increase your oil production.<sup>19</sup> Localized; no other oil export under the "Oil for Food Program," Iraq's decision remained completely localized; no other oil exporter followed Iraq's lead. Faced with this reality, the Iraqi Oil Minister, Amer Muhammad Rashid, could only beg other oil producing countries, "at a minimum do not increase your oil production,"<sup>18</sup> feeling isolated on the subject, Saddam Hussein do not increase your oil production.<sup>19</sup>

Second, the Iraqi decision ironically coincided with the news that OPEC members had exceeded their quota in March by 1.3 million barrel per day,<sup>20</sup> which is approximately equivalent to the size of the Iraqi oil export under the "Oil for Food Program." Iraq's decision remained completely localized; no other oil export followed Iraq's lead. Faced with this reality, the Iraqi Oil Minister, Amer Muhammad Rashid, could only beg other oil producing countries, "at a minimum do not increase your oil production,"<sup>18</sup> feeling isolated on the subject, Saddam Hussein do not increase your oil production.<sup>19</sup>

After the immediate nervous market reaction which boosted oil prices on that day by about 10 percent, realities and common sense began to set in, and the price of oil fell approximately 19 percent by the end of the first week after Iraq's announcement. There may be two reasons for the markets to have so quickly regained their composure: first, other oil exporters, particularly Saudi Arabia, offered assurances that oil flow would not be affected by political considerations; and second, the Iraqi decision ironically coincided with the news that OPEC members had exceeded their quota in March by 1.3 million barrel per day,<sup>20</sup> which is approximately equivalent to the size of the Iraqi oil export under the "Oil for Food Program." Iraq's decision remained completely localized; no other oil export followed Iraq's lead. Faced with this reality, the Iraqi Oil Minister, Amer Muhammad Rashid, could only beg other oil producing countries, "at a minimum do not increase your oil production,"<sup>18</sup> feeling isolated on the subject, Saddam Hussein do not increase your oil production.<sup>19</sup>

Underlying the suspension of oil exports were four unstated objectives: first, was an attempt to destabilize the international oil market; second, to embarrass the conservative regimes of the Gulf; third, to appear as the true defender of the Palestinian people; and fourth, to try to appear as someone who was still to be reckoned with. Like most previous "dramatic statements" by Saddam, this one appeared to be based more on miscalculations than on political or economic wisdom. It was obvious that no Arab leader would associate himself at the time with a major wisdom. It was obvious that no Arab leader would associate himself at the time with a major wisdom. It was obvious that no Arab leader would associate himself at the time with a major wisdom. It was obvious that no Arab leader would associate himself at the time with a major wisdom.

On April 8, 2002, hardly 48 hours after President Bush and Prime Minister Blair declared that Saddam Hussein would be removed from office, Saddam announced, as a part of a speech made to the "heroic and glorious" people of the "Great Iraq," that the country's oil exports would be suspended for one month, effective immediately in solidarity with the Palestinian people.

Employing the services of the Iraqi national audit agency that had a distinguished record and expert auditors,

II. Saddam's Oil Embargo

Both Haliday (Irish national) followed by von Sponeck (German national) served as UN representatives in Iraq for humanitarian affairs following the signing of the Memorandum of Understanding between the UN and Iraq in 1996 and both, up to the fall of the Saddam regime, made numerous speeches and gave a large number of interviews, many on American TV stations, denouncing the UN sanctions as harmful to the people of Iraq but never uttered a critical word about the regime abuses of the "Oil for Food Program" or about the regime itself.

Nations [bold added]...including Messrs, Dennis Haliday, Hans von Sponeck, and Dr. Ashraf Biomi. ...the so-called humanitarian program has changed from an instrument to alleviate the suffering of the Iraqi people to an instrument to harm it. Indeed it has turned into a weapon to wage war on Iraq and to impede its economic growth and scientific and cultural progress. And this has been rejected by the honest employees of the United Nations [bold added].

Commenting on Sevan's visit, the official government newspaper Al-Thawra<sup>21</sup> wrote:

Sevan said that there was no substitute for the program as long as the sanctions existed. Regrettably, he was quoted saying, "the program cannot be kept independent of the on-going political debate about Iraq." While in Iraq, Sevan visited both the northem and southern regions of the country. These two regions were guaranteed a certain percentage of the program, not subject to Iraqi government's control.

Ramadan declared, "We call on the United Nations to exercise its role to ensure proper implementation of the memorandum of understanding on the 'Oil for Food Program'." Following his meeting with Sevan, Iraq's Vice President, Taha Yassini "suffers from paralysis". He expressed his regret that the program changes that would meet the needs of the Iraqi people. He expresses his regret that the necessary committee to review the instruments used in applying the program and to consider the necessary continuous reform." He said it was necessary for the Security Council and the Sanctions Committee to review the instruments used in applying the program and to consider the necessary continuous reform." He told reporters in Baghdad that the program required "continuous reform".

Iraqi newspaper Babil<sup>22</sup> reported on the conclusion of a 25-day visit to Iraq of Benon Sevan, the Director of the "Oil for Food Program".

UN Director of "Oil for Food" Calls for Reforms

III. The UN and "Oil for Food Program"

Iraqi newspaper Babil which, as mentioned above, was published by Saddam's son, Uday, quoted Russian sources as saying that Iraq's decision was "a mistake."<sup>19</sup>

Prince Saad Al-Faisal, the foreign minister of Saudi Arabia which is the largest exporter of oil in the world, stressed that the Arab countries depend on their oil exports for economic growth. He said oil "is not a weapon like a gun or a tank but a resource that benefits the national economy." He concluded, "We are in a war with an enemy [Saddam] and the first thing this enemy will do will be to destroy our oilfields."<sup>18</sup>

OPEC was on record that it would not use oil as a political weapon.<sup>17</sup> Oil through strategic stockpiling, technological advances and cost reduction. More importantly, organization headquartered in Paris) which has sought to reduce the world dependence on Arab over oil supply. He cited the creation in 1974 of the International Energy Agency (a consumer

UNICEF organized international demonstrations and protests and the collection of millions of dollars under the banner of protection of children of Iraq from the effects of the sanctions. The UNICEF demonstration because of shortage of medicine and milk. In fact, rather than being spent for the needs of the non-Europeans. Iraqi nationals would have difficulty serving in any of these organizations had they not agreed to collaborate with the Mukhabarat. While the U.N. agencies cannot be blamed for the action of the Iraqi Mukhabarat, the paper does accuse them of malfeasance. The paper offers the following examples:

The paper argues that most of these UN agencies have been penetrated by elements of the Iraqi Mukhabarat (intelligence services) which sought to recruit most of their employees, particularly the non-Europeans. Iraqi nationals would have difficulty serving in any of these organizations had they not agreed to collaborate with the Mukhabarat. While the U.N. agencies cannot be blamed for the action of the Iraqi Mukhabarat, the paper does accuse them of malfeasance. The paper offers the following examples:

A recent article in the daily Al-Thihad<sup>23</sup> of the PUK (Partiotic Union of Kurdistan) singled out for special criticism the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), the World Health Organization (WHO), the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), United Nations World Food Program (WFP) and United Nations Human Settlements Organization (HABITAT).

The alleged looting of Iraq by the FAO is reported to have been extensive. The daily Al-Sharq Al-Awsat mentions by name Amri Khalil, the head of the agency in Iraq, who staffed the agency with six Sudanese nationals out of seven expatriate staff in coordination with Saddam's Mukhabarat.

A senior official in the Iraqi Governing Council has recently accused unnamed senior agency officials of financial laundering that provided millions of dollars. He said that the Ministry of Agriculture possesses documents that provide irrefutable evidence of serious imitations on the part of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO). Two examples illustrate the point. In 2001, Kurdistan needed to import chemical fertilizers for its agriculture. FAO, which is headquartered in Rome, bought the same quantity of fertilizers and of the same quality for one-fifth of the cost charged by the Italian company. FAO also imported, in 2002, 1985 model tractors after having them painted in Jordan to give them a newer look. When the London daily, Al-Sharq Al-Awsat which reported the story, asked the source as to why there had been no complaints, the source replied that FAO officials had threatened to cancel the program altogether.<sup>22</sup> It should be pointed out that UN agencies normally charge a minimum of 15 percent as overheads when they enter into what is known as "executing agency" arrangements with one of the UN funding agencies.

While most of the US focus has been on the United Nations management of the "Oil for Food Program," other parts of the U.N. were indirectly involved as suppliers of services and commodities. In recent weeks, as more documents are becoming available, Iraqi officials have begun to point a finger at the performance of the United Nations specialized agencies in Iraq during the "Oil for Food Program."

The Involvement of other U.N. Specialized Agencies

The two UN officials could not have been unaware of the abuses of the program, nor of the Saddam regime.

- <sup>1</sup> Following the adoption of Security Council resolution 986 about "Oil for Food", the United Nations World Food Program played a key role in supplying Iraq with food. Under the regime demands of the regime, imports were limited to Arab countries and friends of the regime regardless of the quality of the food products imported. As an example, an Egyptian trader Mr. Jilida [Jilida who is listed in Annex II as having received oil vouchers for 14 million barrels] was given a monopoly for exporting Egyptian food stock to Iraq. Mr. Jilida also brought to Iraq a large number of Egyptian artists and dancers to entertain the Iraqi Leadership. Egyptians have all been involved in oil smuggling. http://www.iccwo.org/ccs/news\_archives/2001/Iraq.asp.
- <sup>2</sup> See Annex I.
- <sup>3</sup> Late 2001, the son of Tariq Aziz, Iraq's deputy Prime Minister, was sentenced to 6 months in prison for allegedly double-crossing Saddam's son, Uday, in a business transaction.
- <sup>4</sup> MEMRI Economic News Report, November 11, 2001
- <sup>5</sup> The International Maritime Bureau has called for increased port controls by Gulf States in a bid to stop unseaworthy vessels smuggling oil out of Iraq and reduce the risk of collisions and oil spills. Ships carrying the flags of Albania, Belize, Bolivia, Cambodia, Comoros, Georgia, Honduras, Maldives, Mauritius, Sri Lanka and Grenadines have all been involved in oil smuggling. <http://www.mrri.org/mca/features/2000/06/F.RU.000621122248.html>.
- <sup>6</sup> "Iraq: Oil Smuggling Profits," www.mrri.org/mca/features/2000/06/F.RU.000621122248.html.
- <sup>7</sup> MEMRI Economic News Report, September 5, 2001.
- <sup>8</sup> MEMRI Middle East Economic News and Report, March 11, 2002.
- <sup>9</sup> MEMRI Middle East Economic News and Report, December 31, 2001.
- <sup>10</sup> MEMRI Economic News Report, October 26, 2001.
- <sup>11</sup> MEMRI Middle East Economic News and Report, January 7, 2002.
- <sup>12</sup> MEMRI Iraq Newswire, May 18, 2002
- <sup>13</sup> MEMRI Middle East Economic News and Report, December 31, 2001.
- <sup>14</sup> AL-Quds Al-Arabi (London), April 20, 2002.
- <sup>15</sup> Babti, April 9, 2002.
- <sup>16</sup> Babti, April 23, 2002.
- <sup>17</sup> AL-Ahram (Egypt), April 6, 2002.
- <sup>18</sup> AL-Sharq Al-Awsat (Kuwait), April 10, 2002.
- <sup>19</sup> Babti, April 9, 2002.
- <sup>20</sup> Babti, February 12, 2002.
- <sup>21</sup> AL-Thawra (Iraq), February 12, 2002.
- <sup>22</sup> AL-Sharq Al-Awsat, February 14, 2004.
- <sup>23</sup> Al-Tathid, February 23, 2004.

executive director of the program, was aware of these abuses but remained silent for unknown reasons.

Following the adoption of Security Council resolution 986 about "Oil for Food", the United Nations World Food Program played a key role in supplying Iraq with food. Under the regime demands of the regime, imports were limited to Arab countries and friends of the regime regardless of the quality of the food products imported. As an example, an Egyptian trader Mr. Jilida [Jilida who is listed in Annex II as having received oil vouchers for 14 million barrels] was given a monopoly for exporting Egyptian food stock to Iraq. Mr. Jilida also brought to Iraq a large number of Egyptian artists and dancers to entertain the Iraqi Leadership. Egyptians have all been involved in oil smuggling. <http://www.mrri.org/mca/features/2000/06/F.RU.000621122248.html>.

At the same time, UNICEF was silent about the killing of thousands of Iraqi children as a result of the forced deportation of Kurdish families and the drafting the Iraqi marshes in the south of the country.

Or for buying the consciousnesses of writers, artists and journalists to sing the praise of the regime. At the same time, UNICEF was silent about the killing of thousands of Iraqi children as a result of the forced deportation of Kurdish families and the drafting the Iraqi marshes in the south of the country.

The children, Iraqi capital was being smuggled to international banks for the benefit of the regime or for buying the consciousnesses of writers, artists and journalists to sing the praise of the regime.

The Middle East Media Research Institute (MEMRI) is an independent, non-profit organization providing translations of the Middle East media and analysts and research on developments in the region. Copies of articles and documents cited, as well as background information, are available on request.

for the Iraqi government to subvert the sanctions
There are other ways, sometimes even more efficient,

Oil Smuggling

and for the cost of reshipment.
allow a margin of profit for local trading companies
price than it costs to import, as the government must resold to local merchants who export it as a domestic commodity. Iraq then resells the wheat at a lower
A good example is importing wheat which is then are re-exported by the government to earn illicit cash.
program which are not needed for local markets but
is to import commodities under the "Oil for Food"
Another way of subverting the sanctions regime

the government.
treasury or to an individual beneficiary designated by transfer) is then transferred in cash to the Iraqi margin of illicit profit known in business as pricing of 10%, to the negotiated price. This additional exporters) connive to add a big margin, a minimum stage, the two sides (the government and the deals with the exporters or suppliers. At that the deals with the Iraqi government which negotiates
However, it is the Iraqi government that decides exported to Iraq after advance approval by the UN.
remburses the exporters and suppliers for goods
equipment and supplies. The special account

Syria, but also through Jordan and via waterways. The following is a summary of Al-Amin's article:
"Oil for Food" program administered by the United Nations, and second, the smuggling of oil, primarily through time, earn illicit income. According to Al-Amin, two interrelated instruments are used for this purpose: First, the the manner in which Iraqi authorities subvert the sanctions regime in an effort to buy friendships and, at the same road between Amman and Baghdad is crowded with cargo shipments and oil tankers. Big transactions, Iraq's relationship with Jordan is a case in point. The
In an article published recently in the London-based Arabic daily Al-Hayat, reporter Hazem Al-Amin exposes

Iraq Buys and Smuggles Its Way Out of UN Sanctions

No. 382

May 22, 2002

Special Dispatch - Iraq/Economic Studies

receive a certain amount of oil either free or at discounted prices. The beneficiary of the coupon uses the services of a local agent to sell the coupon to a foreign company. The buyer of the coupon submits it to SOMO (State Oil Marketing Organization) of Iraq, which, in turn, will pump the oil through the Iraqi-Syrian oil pipeline for shipping the oil. There are various responsible for shipping the oil, who is Syria through the Kirkuk-Bamina pipeline but it is probable to pay it to maintain good relations with SOMO. The many efforts by the UN to insist on an illegal under the UN sanctions regimes, most traders are prepared to pay it to maintain good relations with SOMO. An additional form of illicit income is the special surcharge of $0.25-0.40 levied by SOMO on each barrel of oil sold by Iraq. While this surcharge is apparently failed.

On May 14, the Security Council approved a revised sanctions regime on Iraq. While Iraq is still denied access to items that may be used for dual (military as well as civilian) purposes, such as heavy trucks and sanctuaries, and journalists across the Arab world, "Food" program to acquire support among writers, artists, singers, and journalists uses the "Oil for Food" program to play its old tricks to subvert the system and generate illicit revenues.

New Sanctions Regime - No Real Change

On May 14, the Security Council approved a revised sanctions regime on Iraq. While Iraq is still denied access to items that may be used for dual (military as well as civilian) purposes, such as heavy trucks and sanctuaries, and journalists across the Arab world, "Food" program to acquire support among writers, artists, singers, and journalists uses the "Oil for Food" program to play its old tricks to subvert the system and generate illicit revenues.

The "Oil for Food" program to play its old tricks to subvert the system and generate illicit revenues.

3. The International Maritime Bureau has called for increased port controls by Gulf States in a bid to stop unseaworthy vessels smuggling oil out of Iraq and reduce the risk of collisions and oil spills. Ships carrying the flags of Albania, Belize, Bolivia, Cambodia, Comoros, Georgia, Honduras, Mauritius, Saint Vincent and Grenadines have all been involved in oil smuggling. Ships carrying the flags of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, France, Germany, Greece, India, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Norway, Pakistan, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Venezuela, and the United States have all been involved in oil smuggling.

4. Late last year, the son of Tariq Aziz, Iraq's deputy Prime Minister, was sentenced to 6 months in prison for allegedly double-crossing Saddam's son, Uday, in a business transaction. The late last year, the son of Tariq Aziz, Iraq's deputy Prime Minister, was sentenced to 6 months in prison for allegedly double-crossing Saddam's son, Uday, in a business transaction. The late last year, the son of Tariq Aziz, Iraq's deputy Prime Minister, was sentenced to 6 months in prison for allegedly double-crossing Saddam's son, Uday, in a business transaction.

5. The International Maritime Bureau has called for increased port controls by Gulf States in a bid to stop unseaworthy vessels smuggling oil out of Iraq and reduce the risk of collisions and oil spills. Ships carrying the flags of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador, France, Germany, Greece, India, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Norway, Pakistan, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Venezuela, and the United States have all been involved in oil smuggling.

The Middle East Media Research Institute (MEMRI) is an independent, non-profit organization providing translations of the Middle East media and original analysis and research on developments in the region. Copies of articles and documents cited, as well as background information, are available on request.

One of the common arguments by recipients of vouchers was that the vouchers paid for goods provided in the framework of the U.N.-administered Oil for Food program. However, under the Memorandum of Understanding governing the program, oil allocations were intended for "end users," meaning those with refiners. Most of the framework of the Oil for Food program. However, under the Memorandum of Understanding governing the program, oil allocations were intended for "end users," meaning those with refiners. Most of the United Arab Emirates for a commission which initially ranged from $0.25 to $0.30 per barrel, though it may have declined in later years to as little as $0.10 or even $0.05 per barrel because of oil surpluses on the market.<sup>7</sup> In other words, a voucher for 1 million barrels would have translated into a quick profit of $250,000-300,000 on the high side and $50,000-100,000 on the low side – all paid in cash. According to Al-Mada, Jordan will seek to tax the illicit profits of citizens who benefited from the sale of the vouchers.

In a subsequent article, Al-Mada provides details on the allocation and sale of oil vouchers. In general, the vouchers were given either as gifts or as payment for goods imported into Iraq in violation of the U.N. sanctions. The voucher holder would normally tender the voucher to any one of the specialized companies operating in the United States or as gifts or as payment for goods imported into Iraq in violation of the U.N. sanctions. The subsequent article, Al-Mada provides details on the allocation and sale of oil vouchers. In general, the

How It Worked: The Voucher Transactions Method

The Iraqi Government Council has focused on 46 foreign individuals and organizations included on the lists, primarily from neighboring countries, to determine appropriate action.<sup>4</sup> Council member Muwassaq Al-Rabi said during a visit to Beirut that the council has "tons of documents" but emphasized that the publication of these documents will be handled in a constructive way and not "for the sake of vengeance and revenge."<sup>5</sup>

In describing what it called "the curse of the Iraqi vouchers," the London Arabic-language daily Al-Hayat said that it expects more names and details to be made public in the near future and anticipates the revelation of a scandal of vast dimensions transcending countries and continents, implicating many prominent individuals and organizations.<sup>6</sup>

A former undersecretary in the Iraqi Ministry of Petroleum, Abd Al-Sabiq Salman Qutb, said that the ministry possesses documents proving the authenticity of the list published by Al-Mada. The list was originally prepared by the State Oil Marketing Organization (SOMO), which was responsible for marketing Iraqi petroleum.<sup>2</sup> Mr. Qutb also said that the ministry was collecting the information for submission to Interpol, which could then pursue the voucher beneficiaries.<sup>3</sup>

The Iraqi Government Council has focused on 46 foreign individuals and organizations included on the lists, primarily from neighboring countries, to determine appropriate action.<sup>4</sup> Council member Muwassaq Al-Rabi said during a visit to Beirut that the council has "tons of documents" but emphasized that the publication of these documents will be handled in a constructive way and not "for the sake of vengeance and revenge."<sup>5</sup>

On January 25, 2004, the Iraqi independent daily Al-Mada published a list of approximately 270 individuals and entities who were beneficiaries of Saddam Hussein's oil vouchers.<sup>1</sup> The report evoked reactions from many fact that so many have opted for silence may give credence to the list's authenticity.

Introduction

By Dr. Nirmrod Rapaport*

The Saddam Oil Vouchers Affair

No. 164

February 20, 2004

Country	Recipient	Amount
Alegeria	1. Abd Al-Majid Al-Atar 2. Abd Al-Qadir bin Mussa	6 million 6 million
Austria	1. Hans Kogler 2. Arab-Austrian Committee	2 million 1 million
Bahrain	1. Kadhem Al-Darazi Company 2. Al-Muslim Company 3. Concrete Contracting Company	2 million 3 million 2 million
Belarus	1. Liberal Party 2. Belarus Communist Party 3. Belfarm Company 4. Belfarm Company 5. Chief of the President's Bureau 6. Lada Company	6 million 7 tons 14.2 million 4 million 6 million 2 million
Brazil	1. Fudá Síthán 2. October 8 Movement (Chavez) 3. Arthur Milholland	10 million 4.5 million 9.6 million
Canada	1. The Socialist Party of Bulgaria	12 million
Bulgaria

All numbers for barrels of oil unless indicated otherwise
 All names on the list were transcribed from the Arabic. Although every effort was made to be precise, some inaccuracy is inevitable.

(All numbers for barrels of oil unless indicated otherwise)

The Saddam Oil Vouchers Affairs, Part I:

A. Complete List of Recipients of Oil Vouchers (in alphabetical order by

Part II: (A) the list of oil voucher recipients; and (B) reactions by implicated individuals and organizations.

Part III: Arab media reactions.

This report reviews the Saddam Oil Vouchers Affairs, in two parts:<sup>8</sup>

Transactions might be going on directly between the Iraqi government and the buyers and sellers.<sup>8</sup>
 Secular Council Sanctions Committee into a U.N. escrow account, and the U.N. had to verify that the goods purchased by Iraq were indeed those allowed under the program. But the U.N. had no way of knowing what other purchases by Iraq were considered illicit since all contracts approved by the U.N. were reimbursed from the trust account where the oil revenues were kept, at a bank, at Iraq's insistence. According to the United Nations: "The oil buyer had to pay the price approved by the Security Council Sanctions Committee." Moreover, if vouchers were used to pay for goods, it would suggest that these were not authorized by the program and should be considered illicit since all contracts approved by the U.N. were considered "non-end users." Moreover, if vouchers were used to pay for goods, it would suggest that these were considered "non-end users." Moreover, if vouchers were used to pay for goods, it would suggest that these were not authorized by the program and should be considered illicit since all contracts approved by the U.N. were considered "non-end users."

Hungary

1. Hungarian Interest Party 4.7 million
2. Indian Congress Party 4 million

India

1. Bihar Singh 5.5 million
2. Indian Congress Party 4 million

Hungary

1. Hungarian Interest Party 4.7 million
2. Indian Congress Party 4 million

India

1. Bihar Singh 5.5 million
2. Indian Congress Party 4 million

France

1. ADDAX 8.3 million
2. Traficura Patrick Maugein 25 million
3. Michel Grimaud 17 million
4. Franco-Traqi Friendship 15.1 million
5. Ayix 47.2 million
6. Charles Pasqua 12 million
7. Alias AL-Ghazzali 14.6 million
8. IOTC (Claude Casper) 4 million
9. Jean-Bernard Merimee 8 million
10. Jean-Bernard Merimee 3 million
11. de Souza 11 million

France

1. Bihar Singh 5.5 million
2. Indian Congress Party 4 million
3. Michel Grimaud 17 million
4. Franco-Traqi Friendship 15.1 million
5. Ayix 47.2 million
6. Charles Pasqua 12 million
7. Alias AL-Ghazzali 14.6 million
8. IOTC (Claude Casper) 4 million
9. Jean-Bernard Merimee 8 million
10. Jean-Bernard Merimee 3 million
11. de Souza 11 million

Egypt

1. Ancom Co. (Muhammad Shatta) 14 million
2. Abd Al-Aziz Manaf 6 million
3. Khaled Gamal Abd Al-Nasser 16.5 million
4. Imdad Al-Jilida 14 million
5. Muhammad Salah 7 million
6. Muhammad Hilmi 4.5 million
7. Arab Company Limited 6 million
8. Nile & Euphrates Co. 3 million
9. Mahmoud Mahdi Al-Mas'arawi 7 million
10. AL-Hamidi Bashti Foundation 2 million
11. International Multaqaf Foundation 2 million

Egypt

1. Ancom Co. (Muhammad Shatta) 14 million
2. Abd Al-Aziz Manaf 6 million
3. Khaled Gamal Abd Al-Nasser 16.5 million
4. Imdad Al-Jilida 14 million
5. Muhammad Salah 7 million
6. Muhammad Hilmi 4.5 million
7. Arab Company Limited 6 million
8. Nile & Euphrates Co. 3 million
9. Mahmoud Mahdi Al-Mas'arawi 7 million
10. AL-Hamidi Bashti Foundation 2 million
11. International Multaqaf Foundation 2 million

Cyprus

1. Muhammad Al-Hawny 17 million
2. Nefra Petroleum 13.2 million
3. Continental 1 million

Cyprus

1. Muhammad Al-Hawny 17 million
2. Nefra Petroleum 13.2 million
3. Continental 1 million

China

1. Mr. Juan 39.1 million
2. Noresco 17.5 million
3. Zank Rook 13 million
4. Biorg 13.5 million
5. South Holkenn 1 million

China

1. Mr. Juan 39.1 million
2. Noresco 17.5 million
3. Zank Rook 13 million
4. Biorg 13.5 million
5. South Holkenn 1 million

1. Daugther of President Sukarno 2 million
2. Hawa Alatlantic 2 million
3. Makram Hakim 3 million
4. Megawati 8 million
5. Muhammad Amim Rayyis 4 million
6. Natura Oli 2 million

Ireland
1. Riyadh Al-Taher 11 million
2. Afro-Easterm 2 million

Italy
1. Roberto Firmagoni 24.5 million
2. Salvatore Nicotra 20 million
3. Mr. Felomi 6.5 million
4. Father Benjamin 4.5 million
5. West Petrol 2 tons
6. Herakk 2 tons
7. IPS (Italian Petroleum Assoc.) 1 million

Jordan
1. Leith Shbeilat 15.5 million
2. Fakhrri Qawar 6 million
3. Grand Resource 2 million
4. Al-Rashid International (Ahmad Al-Bashir) 9 million
5. Fawwaz Zuriqat 6 million
6. Saleem AL-Naass 3 million
7. Zayyad AL-Ragheb 7 million
8. Mas'hur Haditha 4 million
9. Shaker bin Zayd 6.5 million
10. Muhammed Saleh Al-Hourani 4 million
11. Tofiq Faisal 3 million
12. Ministry of Energy (Jordan) 5 million
13. Zayyad Yaqboum 2 million
14. Wamidh Huissen 1 million

Kenya
1. Muhammed Othman Said 10.5 million

Lebanon
1. B.B. Energy 2 million
2. Fadi Al-Alamiyah (International) 2 million
3. Haitham Seidioui 2 million
4. Palm [Blunt?] Petroleum 1 million
5. George Tarhanyan 7 million
6. President Lehoued's son 4.5 million
7. Ali Toma 1 million
8. Al-Hilal Co. (Adnan Al-Hanafi) 1 million
9. International Company for Trade 1 million

Libya	1. Shukri Gharem 6 million
10. Faisal Darmaqa and Investment	3 million
11. Fim Oli Company	1 million
12. Nasah Wakim	3 million
13. Osama Matorf	3 million
14. Zuhair AL-Khatib	3.5 million
Malaysia
1. Faizy Ahmad Sharif 2. Pitmall Company	12.5 million
3. Trader Babar	4 million
4. Faizy Ahmad Sharif	4 million
5. Hawala	57 million
6. Masitek (Faizy Ahmad Sharif)	4 million
7. Masitek (Faizy Ahmad Sharif)	5.7 million
8. Abdallah AL-Sallawi	7.2 million
9. Nadheil AL-Hashemi	7.2 million
10. Hayson	7.2 million
Nigeria
1. Sy Bolt 2. Raz Company	3 million
3. A.A.G. Company (Nigerian Ambassador)	1 million
4. Comeback	4 million
5. Abu Al-Abbas	5 million
Palestine
1. Abu Al-Abbas 2. Abdullah Al-Hourani	11.5 million
3. Wafa Tawfiq Sa'igh	8 million
4. Liberation Organization	3.5 million
5. Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	4 million
6. Liberation Organization	5 million
7. Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	5 million
Pakistan
1. Oil & Gas Group	10 tons
2. Abu Abd Al-Rahman	11.5 tons
3. Sayyed Azzaz	1 ton
Oman
1. Shafei Group	5 million
Qatar
1. Abu Al-Abbas 2. Abdullah Al-Hourani	11.5 million
3. Wafa Tawfiq Sa'igh	8 million
4. Liberation Organization	3.5 million
5. Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	4 million
6. Liberation Organization	5 million
7. Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	5 million
UAE
1. Abu Al-Abbas 2. Abdullah Al-Hourani	11.5 million
3. Wafa Tawfiq Sa'igh	8 million
4. Liberation Organization	3.5 million
5. Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	4 million
6. Liberation Organization	5 million
7. Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	5 million
Saudi Arabia
1. Abu Al-Abbas 2. Abdullah Al-Hourani	11.5 million
3. Wafa Tawfiq Sa'igh	8 million
4. Liberation Organization	3.5 million
5. Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	4 million
6. Liberation Organization	5 million
7. Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	5 million
Yemen
1. Abu Al-Abbas 2. Abdullah Al-Hourani	11.5 million
3. Wafa Tawfiq Sa'igh	8 million
4. Liberation Organization	3.5 million
5. Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	4 million
6. Liberation Organization	5 million
7. Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	5 million
Other
1. Abu Al-Abbas 2. Abdullah Al-Hourani	11.5 million
3. Wafa Tawfiq Sa'igh	8 million
4. Liberation Organization	3.5 million
5. Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	4 million
6. Liberation Organization	5 million
7. Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	5 million

Panama	1. Sevan	11.5 million
Philippines	1. Philipines Production Group	3 million
Qatar	1. Hamad bin Ali Al-Thani	14 million
2. The Dulaimy Group	4 million	2 million
3. Gulf Petroleum	2 million	2 million
4. Petroleum Oili	1 million	2 million
5. Petroleum Wells Maintenance	5.5 million	2 million
Romania	2. Delt Aeroflink	1 million
1. Romanian Labor Party	5.5 million	5.5 million
Russia	1. The Russian State	1.366 billion
2. Zarubesnft Ampex	174.5 million	86.9 million (for the office of the president, including 1 million to Mr. Terezko, Russian Ambassador to Baghdad)
3. Russnesft Ampex	137 million
4. Communist Party Companies	30.1 million	128.8 million
5. Amirkom (Unity Party/Ministry for Emergencies)	25.5 million	49.1 million
6. Mishtimoprot	8.5 million	35.5 million
7. Al-Hayco (Russian Foreign Ministry)	7.5 million	8.5 million
8. Yatumin (Russian Foreign Ministry)	26 million	7.5 million
9. Slavneft	1 million	26 million
10. Zan Gaz	1 million	1 million
11. Rosneft Company	4 million	63 million
12. Caspian Investment	1 million	1 million
13. Kamameft Company	1 million	1 million
14. Gasprom	4 million	4 million
15. Tatneft	1 million	4 million
16. Lukoil	1 million	1 million
17. Surgut Neftegas	1 million	1 million
18. Sibneft Oil &amp; Gas Company	1 million	1 million
19. Neftegas Moscow Company	25.1 million	22.2 million
20. Onaco Company	21.2 million	21.2 million
21. Sidamco Company	22.2 million	22.2 million
22. Sibneft	21.2 million	21.2 million
23. Transneft	8.1 million	8.1 million
24. Yukos	9 million	9 million
25. Liberal Democratic Party (Zhirinovsky)	2 million	2 million
26. People and Unity Party	34 million (the list mentions party chairman Sazhi Umalatova)	34 million

Saudi Arabia	1. Nasirah Company	3 million
	2. Asiss Company	2 million
	3. Montega	4 million
	4. Omni Oil	4 million
South Africa	1. Imvume Management (Sandy Majali)	9 million
	2. Tokyo Saxwale Holdings (MVL)	4 million
	3. Sandy Majali	9 million
	4. Omni Oil	4 million
Spain	1. Bassim Qaqish	17.5 million
	2. Javier Robret	9.8 million
	3. Ali Ballut	8.8 million
	4. Oli Plus	2 tons
Sudan	1. Samas	8 million
	2. Petroleum Products Co.	2 tons
	3. Oli Plus	2 tons
	4. Oli Plus	2 tons
Slovakia	1. Slovak Communist Party	1 million
South Africa	1. Imvume Management (Sandy Majali)	9 million
	2. Tokyo Saxwale Holdings (MVL)	4 million
	3. Sandy Majali	9 million
	4. Omni Oil	4 million
Spain	1. Bassim Qaqish	17.5 million
	2. Javier Robret	9.8 million
	3. Ali Ballut	8.8 million
	4. Oli Plus	2 tons
Sudan	1. Samas	8 million
	2. Petroleum Products Co.	2 tons
	3. Oli Plus	2 tons
	4. Oli Plus	2 tons
Tunisia	1. Tunisian National Democratic Party	3 million
	2. Tunisian Orthodox Church	5 million
	3. Tunisian National Democratic Party	3 million
	4. Tunisian National Democratic Party	3 million
Ukraine	1. Solidarity with Iraq	12.5 million
	2. Russian-Gazexport	12.5 million
	3. Solidarity with Iraq	12.5 million
	4. Sergei Rudashev is mentioned	6.5 million
Uzbekistan	1. Solidarity with Iraq	12.5 million
	2. Russian-Gazexport	12.5 million
	3. Solidarity with Iraq	12.5 million
	4. Sergei Rudashev is mentioned	6.5 million
Venezuela	1. Chavista Patriotic Unity	19.7 million
	2. Romanin (son of former am-	3.5 million
	3. Zarabshet (Gobkin)	2 million
	4. Nordvest Group	3.5 million
	5. Zarbsmet & Gas	2 million
	6. Stroyneftgas	6 million
	7. Nikolayi Ryzhkov	13 million
	8. Akhmet Nefit Company	4.5 million
	9. Adel Al-Jablawi (I.N.M.)	2 million
	10. Chechma Administration	4.5 million
	11. Cherkashchyna	3 million
	12. Khrzozlit	5 million
	13. Trader Nafra	3 million
	14. Chief of the President's Bureau	5 million
	15. Russian Orthodox Church	5 million
	16. Russian National Democratic Party	3 million
Yemen	1. Socialist People's Democratic Republic of Yemen	1 million
	2. Asiss Company	2 million
	3. Nasirah Company	3 million
	4. Oman Oil	4 million
	5. Montega	4 million
	6. Oli Plus	4 million
	7. Oli Plus	4 million
	8. Oli Plus	4 million
	9. Oli Plus	4 million
	10. Oli Plus	4 million
	11. Oli Plus	4 million
	12. Oli Plus	4 million
	13. Oli Plus	4 million
	14. Oli Plus	4 million
	15. Oli Plus	4 million
	16. Oli Plus	4 million
	17. Oli Plus	4 million
	18. Oli Plus	4 million
	19. Oli Plus	4 million
	20. Oli Plus	4 million
	21. Oli Plus	4 million
	22. Oli Plus	4 million
	23. Oli Plus	4 million
	24. Oli Plus	4 million
	25. Oli Plus	4 million
	26. Oli Plus	4 million
	27. Oli Plus	4 million
	28. Oli Plus	4 million
	29. Oli Plus	4 million
	30. Oli Plus	4 million
	31. Moscow Science Academy	3.5 million
	32. Romanin (son of former am-	3.5 million
	33. Zarabshet (Gobkin)	2 million
	34. Nordvest Group	3.5 million
	35. Zarbsmet & Gas	2 million
	36. Solyuzhnaya (Yuji Shafraannik)	2.5 million
	37. Nikolayi Ryzhkov	1.3 million
	38. Stroyneftgas	6 million
	39. Akhmet Nefit Company	4.5 million
	40. Chechma Administration	2 million
	41. Adel Al-Jablawi (I.N.M.)	2 million
	42. Khrzozlit	6 million
	43. Trader Nafra	5 million
	44. Chief of the President's Bureau	5 million
	45. Russian Orthodox Church	5 million
	46. Russian National Democratic Party	3 million
Zimbabwe	1. Imvume Management (Sandy Majali)	9 million
	2. Tokyo Saxwale Holdings (MVL)	4 million
	3. Sandy Majali	9 million
	4. Omni Oil	4 million
	5. Montega	4 million
	6. Oli Plus	4 million
	7. Oli Plus	4 million
	8. Oli Plus	4 million
	9. Oli Plus	4 million
	10. Oli Plus	4 million
	11. Oli Plus	4 million
	12. Oli Plus	4 million
	13. Oli Plus	4 million
	14. Oli Plus	4 million
	15. Oli Plus	4 million
	16. Oli Plus	4 million
	17. Oli Plus	4 million
	18. Oli Plus	4 million
	19. Oli Plus	4 million
	20. Oli Plus	4 million
	21. Oli Plus	4 million
	22. Oli Plus	4 million
	23. Oli Plus	4 million
	24. Oli Plus	4 million
	25. Oli Plus	4 million
	26. Oli Plus	4 million
	27. Oli Plus	4 million
	28. Oli Plus	4 million
	29. Oli Plus	4 million
	30. Oli Plus	4 million
	31. Moscow Science Academy	3.5 million
	32. Romanin (son of former am-	3.5 million
	33. Zarabshet (Gobkin)	2 million
	34. Nordvest Group	3.5 million
	35. Zarbsmet & Gas	2 million
	36. Solyuzhnaya (Yuji Shafraannik)	2.5 million
	37. Nikolayi Ryzhkov	1.3 million
	38. Stroyneftgas	6 million
	39. Akhmet Nefit Company	4.5 million
	40. Chechma Administration	2 million
	41. Adel Al-Jablawi (I.N.M.)	2 million
	42. Khrzozlit	6 million
	43. Trader Nafra	5 million
	44. Chief of the President's Bureau	5 million
	45. Russian Orthodox Church	5 million
	46. Russian National Democratic Party	3 million

Switzerland <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Media Analysis</li> <li>2. Delta Service</li> <li>3. Iblom</li> <li>4. Sipol</li> <li>5. Glencore</li> <li>6. Lakta</li> <li>7. Elkton [or Elcoo]</li> <li>8. Taurus</li> <li>9. Petrogas</li> <li>10. Fimar [Holdings]</li> <li>11. Napex Company</li> </ol>
Syria <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Awad Ammura</li> <li>2. Beschara Nuji</li> <li>3. Ghassan Shalash</li> <li>4. Muhammad Amar Notei</li> <li>5. Tamam Shehab</li> <li>6. Hamida Nah'a</li> <li>7. Faras Mustapha Tlass</li> <li>8. Salim Al-Toon</li> <li>9. Lutfi Fawzi</li> <li>10. Li'd Guarantees</li> <li>11. Ghasaan Zagharia</li> <li>12. Muhamad Ma'moun Al-Sabi</li> <li>13. Hassan Al-Kayal</li> <li>14. Anwar Al-Aqqaad</li> </ol>
Thailand <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Thai Rice Trader Jaiport</li> </ol>
Tunisia <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Maded Petroleum</li> <li>2. Farmaco</li> <li>3. Maydor</li> </ol>
Turkey <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Zayn Al-Abideen Ardad</li> <li>2. Lutfi Dughan</li> <li>3. Muhammed Aslan</li> <li>4. Techfen</li> <li>5. KCK Company</li> <li>6. Delta Petroleum</li> <li>7. Sita</li> <li>8. Ozta</li> <li>9. Samir</li> <li>10. Muhtashem</li> <li>11. Maddar Sarjeen</li> </ol>

1. Social Democratic Party	8.5 million	6 million	2 million	2 million	4. Fazmash Ampex	5. Nettoegas	6. Hugh Company (Sokolov)	7. Orshansky	8. Fideralty Tokroy	9. Trans Isko	10. The Ukrainian House	11. F.T.D.	12. Socialist Party of Ukraine	1. Fal Petroleum	2. Ahmed Mai' Said Al-Utaiba	3. Jeewan Oli	4. Sultan bin Zayed Al-Nahyan	5. Al-Huda	6. Issa bin Zayed Al-Nahyan	7. Millenium	8. Bony Fiol	2. Mujahideen Khalq	1. Shaker Al-Khatifi	2. Samir Vimecent	4. O.S.C.	1. Abd Al-Karim Al-Aryani	2. Tawfiq Abd Al-Rahem	3. Shaber Abd Al-Haq	Yemen	1. Sociaalist Party	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
2. Ukraine Communist Party	2 million	2 million	4.5 million	5 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	2 million	2 million	2 million	2 tons	6 million	2 million	7.8 million	1.5 million	7.8 million	1.5 million	7 million	7 million+	22 million	22 million	9.5 million	16 million	16 million	9 million	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
3. Energy Resources	6 million	2 million	8 million	5 million	4.5 million	4 million	7.5 million	11 million	11 million	11 million	7.5 million	4 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
4. Fazmash Ampex	2 million	2 million	8 million	5 million	4.5 million	4 million	7.5 million	11 million	11 million	11 million	7.5 million	4 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
5. Nettoegas	2 million	2 million	8 million	5 million	4.5 million	4 million	7.5 million	11 million	11 million	11 million	7.5 million	4 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
6. Hugh Company (Sokolov)	4.5 million	5 million	8 million	5 million	4.5 million	4 million	7.5 million	11 million	11 million	11 million	7.5 million	4 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
7. Orshansky	5 million	5 million	8 million	5 million	4.5 million	4 million	7.5 million	11 million	11 million	11 million	7.5 million	4 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
8. Fideralty Tokroy	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
9. Trans Isko	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
10. The Ukrainian House	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
11. F.T.D.	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	1 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
12. Socialist Party of Ukraine	2 million	2 million	2 million	2 million	2 million	2 million	2 million	2 million	2 million	2 million	2 million	2 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
United Arab Emirates	1. Fal Petroleum	1.8 million	11 million	7.5 million	7.5 million	7.5 million	7.5 million	11 million	11 million	11 million	11 million	11 million	22.9 million	4 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
United Kingdom	2. Ahmad Mai' Said Al-Utaiba	19 million	36.5 million	19 million	7 million	7 million	7 million	19 million	19 million	19 million	19 million	19 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
U.S.A.	1. George Galloway/Nawwaf Zuraigat	1.2 million	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	6 million	1.2 million	1.2 million	1.2 million	1.2 million	1.2 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
Vietnam	1. Vimapco	1.2 million	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	6 million	1.2 million	1.2 million	1.2 million	1.2 million	1.2 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
Yemen	1. Abd Al-Karim Al-Aryani	7.8 million	7.8 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7.8 million	7.8 million	7.8 million	7.8 million	7.8 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia
Yugoslavia	1. Socialist Party	22 million	22 million	9.5 million	9.5 million	9.5 million	9.5 million	22 million	22 million	22 million	22 million	22 million	22.9 million	5 million	4 million	7.5 million	19 million	7 million	10.5 million	7 million	2 tons	2 tons	1.2 million	2 million	6 million	2 million	1.5 million	1.5 million	7 million+	2. Left Party	3. Taliyan Party	4. Kokostanicha Party	Yugoslavia

It is hardly surprising that most of those interviewed or those who received otherwise denied receiving such vouchers or claimed that they had received them from the Oil for Food program. This later argument is somewhat disingenuous because legitimate suppliers of goods and services under the program were paid from a trust account administered by the United Nations, and with vouchers from Saddam. Some may have made statements to newspapers not readily available to MEMRI, and others may have opted to remain silent.

Abd Al-Majid Al-Attar, a former director-general of the Algerian national oil company SONATRAC (6 million barrels) wrote a long rebuttal in the London daily Al-Hayat stating that the 6 million barrels were marketed by Algerian companies. According to him, the profits were used for humanitarian assistance to the Iraqi people. Al-Attar likes to remind the reader "that every airplane [carrying assistance] which landed in Baghdad cost hundreds of thousands of dollars without getting involved in details" [emphasis added].<sup>9</sup> Radio Algeria announced that the state would investigate allegations of corruption.<sup>10</sup>

Ali Al-Muslim (3 million barrels) said he had visited Iraq 22 times before the war but his trips were primarily "humanitarian," and that he had sent food and cleaning materials within the framework of the Oil for Food program. As a sign of appreciation, the regime offered Al-Muslim the opportunity to sell, as a broker, 3 million barrels. Al-Muslim ran into difficulties selling the vouchers and hence he withdrew from the deal.

Bahraini Al-Darazi, the son of businessman Kadhem Al-Darazi (2 million barrels), said his father had made a pilgrimage to Mecca but that all his activities were "purely commercial."<sup>11</sup>

The Socialist Party of Bulgaria (12 million) President Georgi Parvanov, head of the Socialist Party, characterized the allegation as "ill-advised black humor," but ordered an inquiry into the accusation.<sup>12</sup> President Parvanov also met with the U.S. Ambassador in Sofia and sought his help to clarify the facts regarding the list.<sup>13</sup>

Canada Arthur Milliholland, CEO of the Calgary-based Oilexco (9.6 million barrels), denied he had received vouchers and criticized MEMRI, which he claimed "was critical of the recent U.S.-led war with Iraq and participated in the UN's Oil for Food program to help Iraqi children [sic]."<sup>14</sup> Obviously, he hinted, MEMRI "has some motives."

Egypt Abd Al-Ahmed Mammar (6 million barrels), the owner and editor of The Voice of the Arabs (Sawt Al-Arabi), and a member of parliament, offered to show evidence that he had been offered oil vouchers, but had refused them.<sup>15</sup>

Muhammed Shatta (14 million barrels) maintained that he served as an agent for two international petroleum companies and that all his transactions were under the Oil for Food Program. He said there was small-scale smuggling of oil of 3000 barrels at a time by small merchants, but did not explain how the smuggling was related to the vouchers he received.

Khalid Abd Al-Nasser, the son of the late Egyptian president Gamal Abd Al-Nasser, (16.5 million barrels), could not be reached by the Egyptian weekly Roz Al-Youssef because all his phones "were out of order."<sup>16</sup> However, the weekly cites a number of instances of Abd Al-Nasser's involvement in activities for solidarity with Iraq.

Egyptian MP Imad Al-Gidra (14 million barrels) denied receiving any vouchers. Roz Al-Youssef reported that there were rumors before the war that Al-Gidra was "part of the Iraqi propaganda machine."

Muhammed Mahdi Al-Masrawi (7 million barrels) attributes the inclusion of his and other names on the list to their stand against U.S. actions in Iraq.

Muhammed Hilmawi (4.5 million barrels), who named his son Saddam, said he would be proud if his son would be another Saddam Hussein.<sup>16</sup> Otherwise, he denied the allegation.

B. Reactions of Implicated Individuals and Organizations

truth and we do not know its reasons." He added that the accusation "is an attempt to slander those who stand for their country [sic]."

Fahri Oi-war (6 million barrels) is a former Jordanian MP and a journalist. He said the list "has no basis in reality and him as Abd Al-Rahman Al-Qatama.<sup>28</sup>

Tosan Faisal, a member of parliament (3 million barrels), said she acted to help a friend in need. She denied, which had not been paid by the Iraqi government.

United Kingdom said that the accusations are silly. He said that he had earned a commission of five cents per barrel, whose name was linked with British MP George Galloway (see below).

Fawwaz Zureiqat (6 million barrels) said that the Jordanians were defending the Iraqi people.<sup>26</sup> Ironically, he served as the chairman of the anti-corruption committee of the Jordanian parliament.<sup>27</sup>

Nations system was so stringent that it would not have allowed anyone to play with oil contractors and that the publication of the list was intended "to slander those who were defending the Iraqi people."<sup>26</sup>

Jordan Shbeihat (15.5 million barrels) is an Islamist with a pro-Saddam record. He stressed that the United Kingdom

Salvatore Nicotra (20 million) is a former NATO pilot who became an oil merchant.

And Tariq Aziz, Iraq's former deputy prime minister.<sup>25</sup> Father Benjamine (4.5 million barrels) is a French Catholic priest who arranged a meeting between the Pope

Roberto Formigoni (24.5 million) is the president of Lombardia.

Italy

People's Consultative Assembly speaker Amrin Rayyis (4 million barrels) did not respond to the Australian Broadcasting Corporation.

President Megawati Sukarnoputri (2 million) as "daughter of President Sukarno" plus 8 million barrels under her own name). A spokesman told the Australian Broadcasting Corporation that President Megawati was "aware of the allegations."<sup>24</sup>

Indonesia

Hungarian Interest Party (MEP). Quoting from the Hungarian daily Nepszabadság, the MEP was established by Izabella Kiraly B. in the fall of 1993 after her expulsion from the Hungarian Democratic Party. Ms. Kiraly refused to talk to the Hungarian newspaper but her website includes slogans such as: "Hands off Iraq!" Peace instead of War," and "American Leave the World Alone in Peace!" On her site, President Bush in a Nazi uniform with the U.S. flag in hand repeats a famous statement by Hitler: "One People, One Empire, One Ruler" (ein Volk, ein Reich, ein Führer).

Gilles Moinier, secretary general of the Franco-Iraqi Friendship Association, said his organization introduced numerous businesses, oil and otherwise, to contractors in Iraq, but that it was all perfectly legal. For each successful introduction, he said he "received a commission."<sup>22</sup>

Michel Grimaud (17 million barrels) is the founder of the French-Iraqi Export Club.

Jean-Bernard Meritte (3 million barrels) was the French Ambassador to the United Nations and France's representative in the Security Council.

Patrik Maugéin, CEO of the oil firm SOCO International (25 million barrels), was quoted as saying that he did a lot of business in Iraq under the Oil for Food program, "but none of it was illegal."<sup>20</sup> It was mentioned that the 55-year old businessman "appears to wield [influence] with Presidents Jacques Chirac."<sup>21</sup>

France unnnamed former French interior minister may have been the beneficiary.<sup>18</sup> According to The New York Post Mr. Pasqua,<sup>19</sup> a close friend and former colleague of Chirac ... fought to allow visits by top Iraqi officials to France in 1993.

Former interior minister Charles Pasqua (12 million barrels) denied any involvement and suggested another,

It is noteworthy that Egyptian activist El-Sheikh El-Mamduh filed suit in May 2003 against several Egyptian politicians and journalists, accusing them of accepting bribes from Saddam which violated Egyptian law.<sup>17</sup>

Page 11 of 17

Russia's Nikolay Ryzhkov (13 million barrels) was a U.S.S.R. prime minister.
Russia, which received the greatest number of oil vouchers, has said nothing.

"The son of the president of Labor Party, Ioan Cristian Nicolae, in connection with some politicians, has just bought a huge building in Bucharest for $1.5 million.<sup>40</sup>

U.N. approvals were meant to cover his illicit trade.
Nevertheless, I take into consideration that he could have traded Iraqi oil both with and without approval, and that the Iraqi oil that he sold was with U.N. permission — and he showed me some approvals in this regard.

"The owner of Built Drilling, Cornel Bulf, is a pretty well known Romanian businessman, deeply involved in oil business. He has a lot of privileged businesses with the state-owned oil company Petro Rom. He claimed that all oil entities. Two entities are listed under Romania: Delf Aderlin (1 million barrels) and the Romanian Labor Party (5.5 million barrels). The following is a slightly edited version of an email to MEMRI from a Romanian journalist:

"The entities are listed under Romania: Delf Aderlin (1 million barrels) and the Romanian Labor Party (5.5 million barrels). Abd AL-Aziz Mubarak AL-Duleimi (4 million barrels) said he had contracts to sell 10 million barrels as a broker under the U.N. supervision and had nothing to do with Saddam's coupons or bribes.<sup>39</sup>

Qatar Abd AL-Aziz Mubarak AL-Duleimi (4 million barrels) said he had contracts to sell 10 million barrels as a broker under the U.N. supervision and had nothing to do with Saddam's coupons or bribes.<sup>39</sup>

One surprise on the list was Mr. [Benom] Sevan (11.5 million barrels) who is the Executive Director of the Oil for Food program. A U.N. spokesman denied the charges and said that the U.N. secretary-general was completely satisfied with Sevan's integrity.<sup>37</sup> Mr. Sevan denied the allegations and stated that "it was incumbent on those who published these allegations to provide the necessary documents."<sup>38</sup>

Panama Muhamed Al-Basti (4.5 million barrels) who has since died, was a former Moroccan Socialist leader.<sup>36</sup>

Morocco Shukri Ghannem (6 million barrels) is the Libyan prime minister.

Libya Emile Lahoud (4.5 million barrels) is a Lebanese MP and the son of Lebanese President Emile Lahoud. In an interview with the London daily Al-Sharq Al-Awsat, Lahoud maintained that his inclusion on the list was aimed at undermining the position taken by his father which "supports the [Palestinian] resistance, stands by Syria, rejects the occupation of Iraq, and demands the liberation of all the Palestinian lands."<sup>32</sup>

Lebanon Wamid Hussein (Majali) (1 million barrels) denied receiving oil. He said: "I was a member of the Popular Jordanian Committee for Solidarity with Iraq, and provided medicines. We paid for it from our own pockets."<sup>30</sup>

In response to a parliamentary question, Deputy Prime Minister Muhamad Al-Halabi said: "The issue is under follow-up, and we are seeking to verify whether some people have acquired [Iraqi] graft."<sup>31</sup>

Jordanian Committee for Solidarity with Iraq and stand with the Iraqi resistance and the Iraqi brethren and cooperate and support them."<sup>29</sup>

United States Shaker Al-Khaffaji (7 million barrels) advanced $400,000 to Scott Ritter, former U.N. weapons inspector in Iraq. Ritter produced a documentary purporting to tell the true story of the weapons inspections, which in his telling were corrupted by smister U.S. manipulation.<sup>47</sup> Samir Vincent (10.5 million barrels), in 2000, Vicent, an Iraqi-born American who lived in the U.S. since 1958, organized a delegation of Iraqi religious leaders to the U.S., which met with former president Jimmy Carter.

The Mujahideen Khal (36.5) is an organization which opposes the Iranian regime which had operated from within Iraq under the Saddam regime. The United States has classified it as a terrorist organization and it has recently been ordered to leave Iraq. When asked by ABC News about being on the list, Gallaway replied: "Not one brass farthing, I've never seen a barrel of oil, owned one, bought one."<sup>46</sup>

Thus, "George Gallaway as beneficiary is cited six times, twice in the name of Finnish and French companies and the rest Jordanian under the name of Fawwaz Zureiqat. All these requests were approved by the minister of oil, with his signature."<sup>45</sup>

6. Similarly, June 3, 2002 - 3 million barrels
5. Similarly, December 12, 2002 - 3 million barrels
4. Similarly, March 5, 2001 - 2 million barrels receiving 3 million barrels in an agreement on June 8, 2001, also via Mr. Fawwaz Zureiqat.
3. Similarly, Middle East Advance Semi-Conductor, a Jordanian company, referred to Gallaway as Fawwaz Zureiqat, of Aredio Petroleum, in an agreement on July 10, 2001.
2. There is another reference to former MP George Gallaway, as beneficiary of 3 million barrels. Another reference to former MP George Gallaway, in an agreement on December 29, 1999. There is also Gas-O-Y, a Finnish purchasing company, in an agreement on December 29, 1999.
1. There is a reference on the margin of the margin of the list to "a Mr. Burhan Al-Chelabi" and "Fortnum and Mason" a British purchasing company, in an agreement on December 29, 1999.

United Kingdom Syria Hamida Na'ha (over 9 million barrels) is the owner of Al-Wifaq Al-Arabi and the author of a biography of former Iraqi deputy prime minister Tariq Aziz. She is currently writing a biography of Iraqi general Ali Hassan al-Majid, known as Chemical Ali.<sup>43</sup> Farras Mustafa Tlass, Syrian Defense Minister and one of the pillars of the Syrian Ba'th party. He said his company had bought oil from Iraq under the Oil for Food program and denied receiving any oil outside the framework of that agreement.<sup>44</sup>

Tokyo Saxwele Mvelaphanda Holdings (MVL) reacted angrily to its inclusion in the list, but has not denied buying oil under the Oil for Food program.<sup>45</sup> Glencore (12 million barrels) is the largest commodity trader in Switzerland. Petrogas Distribution, and Petrogas Resources — and is associated with the Russian company Petrogas Services (5 million barrels) is listed in Switzerland under three sub-companies — Petrogas Services, Petrogas Distribution, and Petrogas Resources — and is associated with the Russian company Rosneftegazetroy (35.5 million barrels).

Spain Ali Ballut or Balout (8.8 million barrels) is a Lebanese journalist.<sup>46</sup> Glencore (12 million barrels) is the largest commodity trader in Switzerland. Petrogas Distribution, and Petrogas Resources — and is associated with the Russian company Rosneftegazetroy (35.5 million barrels).

Tokyo Saxwele Mvelaphanda Holdings (MVL) reacted angrily to its inclusion in the list, but has not denied buying oil under the Oil for Food program.<sup>45</sup> South Africa Inqubuy & Analysts Page 13 of 17

In the Kuwaiti daily Al-Siyassa, in an article titled "The Barrels of Oil," Daoud Al-Basri writes that the voucher scandal was not so much about the millions of barrels of oil given to the militants and their

"It is incumbent on the state to respond clearly and forcefully to the sources of the news and prove the innocence of all those who were accused of receiving money from Saddam or smuggled money from the former Iraqi regime against its commission."<sup>52</sup>

"The citizens pay for the involvement of some officials in financial scandals and money laundering and oil vouchers, the payment of bribes ... without the authorities trying to put an end to them.

Jubran Twemey, the editor of the Lebanese daily Al-Nahar, wrote: "Once again, the country [Lebanon] and the citizens pay for the involvement of some officials in financial scandals and money laundering and oil vouchers and one of the most vocal supporters of the Saddam regime in its heyday. Al-Nabusi expresses his astonishment at the relationship between an Islamist who advocates an Islamic state run according to Sharia law and the secular regime of Saddam which despised the clerics and killed and tortured many of them."<sup>53</sup>

Writing in the Kuwaiti daily Al-Siyassa, columnist Shaker Al-Nabusi says: "At the outset, it appears that the list . . . is valid and the evidence is that some of those whose names were mentioned have not denied it." Al-

Nabusi's column focuses on Jordanian Islamist Leith Shbeilat, one of the biggest beneficiaries of Saddam's oil vouchers and one of the most vocal supporters of the Saddam regime in its heyday. Leith Shbeilat, one of the big beneficiaries of Saddam's oil

". . . It is also important that no one be excluded [from punishment] if his name appeared on the list regardless of the amount of his influence and the level of his position...."

"Various grants were distributed by Saddam's aides to ministers, under secretaries, journalists, writers and artists. . . . The scandal is growing because it is no secret that hundreds of apartments, Mercedes automobiles, cash and children of heads of states and governments."

"The scandal is growing because among the names are heads of political parties, parliamentarians and the for aggravating and defending him, count in the hundreds, if not more.

"Arabism and nationalism as well as those traders of opportunities. While it is too early to point an accusing finger at anyone in particular, those who have received, from the Saddam regime, in both Arab and non-Arab countries, . . . The scandal is growing, and its threads, hour after hour, are encircling the necks of many who allege pan-

"The scandal is growing because it is no secret that hundreds of apartments, Mercedes automobiles, cash and

Have Mercy on You!" wrote:

An op-ed by Mazen Hammad in the Qatari daily Al-Watan under the title "Publish the Names, May Allah were paid off."<sup>49</sup>

"They have been making the point that Saddam's defenders were not driven by nationalist or Islamic principles, but they included powerful political figures. The Iraqi and Kuwaiti press, in particular, have reason to do so because press, with the exception of the Iraqi, Jordanian, and Lebanese press, has not dared to publish the lists because

Ahmad Al-Rabi, a columnist in the London daily Al-Sharq Al-Awsat, points out that much of the Arab people which was destroyed by Saddam's wars and his stupid policies."<sup>48</sup>

"The reality is that some Arab governments perhaps do not object that politicians and media people benefit from Saddam's bribes either because they are also involved or see no harm in bribes since it is a normal practice by the Arab regimes in varying degrees. Perhaps the political agenda of the deposited Iraqi regime was [no different] than the agendas of these governments. It mattered not to those who were bribed and those who shut their eyes that the agendas of these governments. In fact, Namat says, the publication of the list has triggered even less interest in official circles than in the media. Namat continues:

"The Arab media have neither pursued the issue nor investigated the matter. In fact, Namat says, the publication of shows Saddam Hussein's bribery of hundreds of politicians and journalists from 50 Arab and foreign countries,

Arab television and other media for showing little interest in the oil voucher scandal. Because releasing the list

In an op-ed titled "Beautiful Masks over Ugly Faces" in the London daily Al-Hayat, Salama Namat criticizes

Arab Media Ignore the List

The Saddam Oil Vouchers Affair, Part II: Arab Media Reactions

places during the sanctions, are partners in wrongdoing the [Iraqi] people through their silence about the money from this regime, which destroyed its people with chemical weapons while enjoying a life of luxury in which has dragged the whole region into oblivion. This problem calls for a firm stand. Those who collected institutions — have become in some of these countries propaganda mouthpieces for a corrupt dictatorial regime provided a fitting epilogue to this affair. Dr. Mahmoud told the Egyptian weekly Roz Al-Youssef:

Dr. Abd Al-Ghani Mahmoud, head of the international law department at Egypt's Al-Azhar University,

They Must Be Published Morally

"Those who have the instruments to influence their peoples — intellectuals, politicians, political parties or newcomers handed Iraq oil in its entirety to the American occupier."<sup>57</sup>

"Can those who sold Iraq wholesale to the occupier open the files of corruption and the purchase of consciences?" It is true that the deposed regime wasted millions to buy friends and supporters, but haven't the Iraqis intelligence Agency?"

"Do these tribes, swindlers and the traders of vouchers affair, not the beneficiaries but their critics. He said: "Do the Liami Congress head Ahmad Chalabi) and to smear him:

Faisal al-Qassim, host of the popular Opposite Direction program on Qatari Al-Jazeera satellite television, chose to attack, on his program devoted to the vouchers affair, not the beneficiaries but their critics. He said:

"The lighting of fire recently under the vouchers by the central figures of the Iraqi National Congress against Jordanian intellectuals and journalists is nothing new for the Jordanian government, or for the intellectuals themselves whom the new rulers of Iraq are trying to hit."<sup>56</sup>

In another report from the newspaper Al-Mada ... did not draw much attention in Iraq because Iraqis towards the purposed source of the list (according to him, this source was Iraqi Governing Council member and Iraqi National Congress head Ahmad Chalabi) and to smear him:

"The publication of the list by the newspaper Al-Mada ... did not draw much attention in Iraq because Iraqis were already familiar with this fact. Many Iraqis and particularly those involved in the oil trade business... were aware that the regime was selling quantities of its oil to oil companies and individuals with which it was associated or had good relations to circumvent the UN sanctions which controlled Iraq for 13 years. The policy of the old regime was to support anyone who stood by it or was trying to export goods to Iraq outside the sanctuaries."

In the pro-Saddam London daily Al-Quds Al-Arabi, the paper's Baghdad correspondent writes about "the alleged oil list":

Pro-Saddam Al-Quds Al-Arabi: The List is Only Alleged; Kill the Messenger

Al-Sharq Al-Awsat columnist Samir Attallah wrote in The Mother of [All] Vouchers: "[What is really repulsive] is the language of the total purchase [of supporters] or total hatred ... [the regime] needed people who hate what it hated and offend what it offended... What interests me about the vouchers and the Oil for Food program] ... are the wallings of the former president displaying pictures of children dying from hunger and disease ... and the million and one stories about the poverty and neediness that transformed Iraq from a rich country to a country celebrating the birthday of a president who backs in his presidential palaces amidst poverty, silence, oppression, and the processions of the dead."<sup>54</sup>

Inflammatory partners" as "a scandal for the international and Arab conscience and the environment of silence and deceit which accompanied all the stages of bombing..." He continued: "We will not forget the bombing of those who forged contemporary Iraqi history and those who made Saddam the anticipated Messiah of the Bath."<sup>55</sup>

- <sup>1</sup> See MEMRI Inquiry and Analysis No. 160, January 29, 2004, The Beneficiaries of Saddam's Oil Vouchers: The List of 270, <http://memri.org-bin/archives.cgi?Page=archives&Area=ia&ID=IA16004>.
- <sup>2</sup> AL-Zaman (Baghdad), January 26, 2004.
- <sup>3</sup> AL-Sharaq Al-Awsat (London), January 26, 2004.
- <sup>4</sup> AL-Mashreq (Baghdad), January 30, 2004.
- <sup>5</sup> AL-Siyassah (Kuwait), February 4, 2004.
- <sup>6</sup> AL-Hayat (London), January 31, 2004.
- <sup>7</sup> AL-Mada (Baghdad), February 7, 2004.
- <sup>8</sup> A letter to the Wall Street Journal, February 18, 2004.
- <sup>9</sup> AL-Hayat (London) February 5, 2004.
- <sup>10</sup> AL-Zaman (Baghdad), February 12, 2004.
- <sup>11</sup> AL-Hayat (London), January 30, 2004.
- <sup>12</sup> The Associated Press, January 28, 2004.
- <sup>13</sup> AL-Sharaq Al-Awsat (London), February 1, 2004.
- <sup>14</sup> Al-Qahira Sun (Canada), February 1, 2004.
- <sup>15</sup> Al-Qahira (Egypt), February 1, 2004.
- <sup>16</sup> AL-Ahrar Al-Arabi (Egypt), May 24, 2003.
- <sup>17</sup> Jamal Halaby, United Press International, January 28, 2004.
- <sup>18</sup> AL-Zaman (Baghdad), January 28, 2004.
- <sup>19</sup> The New York Post, January 28, 2004.
- <sup>20</sup> The Daily Telegraph (London), January 28, 2004.
- <sup>21</sup> Meliquence Online, #435 of August 29, 2002.
- <sup>22</sup> The Daily Telegraph (London), January 28, 2004.
- <sup>23</sup> BBC, January 29, 2004.
- <sup>24</sup> Lakshmana.Net (The Politics and Economics Portal), February 2, 2004.
- <sup>25</sup> ABC News, January 29, 2004.
- <sup>26</sup> AL-Quds Al-Arabi (London), January 28, 2004.
- <sup>27</sup> AL-Siyassah (Kuwait), February 4, 2004.
- <sup>28</sup> AL-Anwar (London), February 6, 2004.
- <sup>29</sup> AL-Sharaq Al-Awsat (London), January 26, 2004.
- <sup>30</sup> AL-Sharaq Al-Awsat (London), January 26, 2004.
- <sup>31</sup> United Press International, January 28, 2004.
- <sup>32</sup> AL-Sharaq Al-Awsat (London), February 7, 2004.
- <sup>33</sup> AL-Qassim Al-Mushirak (Baghdad), February 11, 2004.
- <sup>34</sup> AL-Sharaq Al-Awsat (London), February 10, 2004.
- <sup>35</sup> AL-Nahrain (London), February 11, 2004.
- <sup>36</sup> AL-Siyassah (Kuwait), February 4, 2004.
- <sup>37</sup> AL-Hayat (London), January 30, 2004.
- <sup>38</sup> AL-Zaman (Baghdad), February 11, 2004.
- <sup>39</sup> AL-Sharaq (Qatar), January 29, 2004.
- <sup>40</sup> The email is dated February 2, 2004 and is in MEMRI's records.
- <sup>41</sup> Sunday Times (Zambia), January 30, 2004.
- <sup>42</sup> ABC News, January 29, 2004.
- <sup>43</sup> AL-Siyassah (Kuwait), February 4, 2004.
- <sup>44</sup> AL-Sharaq Al-Awsat (London), January 26, 2004.
- <sup>45</sup> AL-Mada (London), January 26, 2004.
- <sup>46</sup> ABC World News Tonight, January 25, 2004.
- <sup>47</sup> <http://slate.msn.com/id/2071502>
- <sup>48</sup> AL-Hayat (London), January 29, 2004.
- <sup>49</sup> AL-Sharaq Al-Awsat (London), January 31, 2004.
- <sup>50</sup> AL-Nahrain (London), January 29, 2004.
- <sup>51</sup> AL-Siyassah (Kuwait), February 4, 2004.
- <sup>52</sup> AL-Nahrain (London), January 29, 2004.
- <sup>53</sup> AL-Siyassah (Kuwait), February 4, 2004.

* Nimrod Raphaeli is a Senior Analyst at MEMRI.

- <sup>54</sup> Al-Sharq Al-Awsat (London), February 6, 2004.
- <sup>55</sup> Al-Quds Al-Arabi (London), January 28, 2004.
- <sup>56</sup> Al-Quds Al-Arabi (London), January 28, 2004.
- <sup>57</sup> Al-Jazeera (Qatar), February 3, 2004.
- <sup>58</sup> Al-Hayat (London), February 17, 2004. The liberal Web site www.elaph.com published photocopies of the originals, February 15, 2004.
- <sup>59</sup> Roz Al-Youssef (Egypt), January 31-February 6, 2004.